A resurrection biologist finds out an extinct plant might be the cure for the rapidly spreading RIPV (Rest in Peace Virus.) After resurrecting a sample, she learns from the government that there are complications with the project, and she will need to delay her work. Her daughter begins to feel symptoms of RIPV. The kindhearted mother is forced to choose between defying the government and losing her daughter to the terrible disease. She makes the illegal medicine and promptly is called to trial. Her fate is still undecided when her daughter realizes the key to saving her mother and others to come.
